Practice Gaps

This webinar will expose radiologists to complex radiology cases, pathologies and new imaging applications that they would not normally encounter in such a short period of time, expanding their range of expertise. Participants can expect to become familiar with cross-sectional imaging, which is becoming commonplace as a diagnostic tool in an expanding number of clinical indications. The cross-sectional imaging studies will be used to illustrate the range of techniques and imaging modalities available for diagnosis of specific entities, as well as the range of commonly encountered abnormalities and their appearances.
